Erin M. Klein is an assurance manager with the Cincinnati office of Decosimo. She is an experienced accounting professional with more than 15 years in senior management roles with a Big 4 accounting firm and in industry accounting.

With a specific focus on tax exempt organizations, Erin has been responsible for managing significant audit engagements for universities, not-for-profits and governmental entities. She has instructed both national training courses and local education classes on topics concerning not-for-profit accounting and audit requirements for entities subject to OMB Circular A-133. She has also been involved in preparing educational materials for industry-specific internal staff training.

Erin also has experience managing assurance and agreed upon procedure engagements for publicly and privately held companies.

Erin is diligent in maintaining an awareness of developments in accounting and auditing standards to ensure that clients and audit committees are aware of changes or issues that may affect their audits. She previously spent two years as a risk control director consulting accounting firms of all sizes to identify areas to improve process, meet professional standards and implement industry best practices to reduce risk.

She is a certified public accountant licensed in the state of Illinois and is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA). Erin graduated Magna Cum Laude from Illinois Wesleyan University with a B.A. degree in Political Science and Business Administration and completed accounting studies at the University of Cincinnati.
